VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[While the columns of THE TIMES are open for the discussion of questions of public interest, to correspondents, it must be understood that it does not necessarily endorse, nor coincide with, the sentiments expressed by writers in this column.]

"The Clinton Meddlesome Man."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR—Be kind enough to publish the enclosed copy of letter, and form of petition, written and sent to Mr. Phillip Grinder, of Big Bar, by J. F. Smith, school teacher at Clinton, so as the people can understand who this man is. I will state that he is the same individual who has been on several occasions designated in the public press as the "Clinton Meddlesome Man." And be it known that I hold myself strictly responsible for the truth of every word.

EDWARD ALLEN, M. P. P.

[CORRECT COPY.]

CLINTON, B. C., Feb. 3, 1885.

DEAR MR. GRINDER:—While you were in last fall you mentioned that if you could write you would make a show of the manner in which the roads, &c., were made in your part. I now offer my services, and I wish you to write me every particular. We have the public accounts up and find removing camp, an item, H. Hink, $15.96. Is this the matter you mentioned at the time that an Indian offered to do for $2.50? Last year's report mentioned roads so many feet wide and bridges so wide; roads are mere trails still. I wish you were here so that I could get the whole so correctly that it could not be contradicted. This imposition must be put a stop to, and that incompetent Superintendent removed and an experienced pioneer take his place. The government, no doubt, think all things are well. If we have not sufficient spirit to take the matter up, where shall it end? I at first intended, as time may run short, to write out my protest for you, and have yourself, Barnett, Koster and others to sign it and send it to the government. But, the full facts I have not got. These two items of Hinks' one is $1 odd dollars. The manner in which the roads were left and the report are conflicting. It will be a fortnight before I can receive your answer by mail, and before I could arrange the facts a month will pass. We can work well on the reports with your knowledge of the case.

I believe a potlach was made of the supplies when they left the river. Allen, according to report, has been paid for ten months, $1300. How did he put this time in? State facts any way. I regret I did not take them down when you were in. If you cannot come, I will give you the concluding form of the whole thing, and get these men to sign it, and I will send it down at the close of the session. The man I think, who ought to be put in the place is John Chenhall, a pioneer, and experienced, and the head of a family. If you four or five think so will you express it in the protest? Hoping you are well. We had here a great deal of illness, and Willie Walker was carried off by pleurisy. Don't fail; now is the time to strike. Yours truly,

J. F. SMITH.

MR. ALLEN'S REMARKS ON ABOVE.

Now, Mr. Editor, I will briefly comment on this most infamous letter. In the first place he says: "We have the public accounts up and find an item, removing camp, H. Hink $15.96." That, sir, is a most willful falsehood, as there is not such an item in the public accounts; and let me inform this meddlesome Smith that H. Hink's name is only shown once in the whole public accounts, and that is $4.50 for removing camp three times, having charged only $1.50 each time. This can be proved by reference to the vouchers in the treasury. The above work was done and finished before Gleen received his appointment. This teacher next says: Last year's report mentioned roads so many feet wide and bridges so wide; and the roads are mere trails still. It is a fact, sir, this man Smith never was within fifteen miles of any road or trail Allen ever made. He next accuses the superintendent of incompetency and asks Mr. Grinder, and others, to assist him in getting Allen removed, and instead of assisting Smith their names will be found numbers 2 to 6 and 23 on the petition demanding Allen's reinstatement. This man Smith next says: I believe there was a potlach of supplies. He is too big a coward to say what he means by this; but I here state that at the close of the season what supplies were left were given by the men to John Chenhall, the very man this Smith recommended as road superintendent. Of course the men themselves pay for their own supplies. He next says Allen received $1300 for 10 months work. He was not man enough to say that it was payment for part of two seasons, as he only worked fifteen months and four days in two years. This I look upon as a dirty piece of slander and well becomes this coward.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have sent you a correct copy of Smith's letter and form of petition. You will see in the petition where he put the dots for the men to sign. Then of course he intended to fill in the upper part to suit himself. This slanderer is going down to Victoria to give an account of his moral character. It will be as well for the Board of Examiners to have a copy of this infamous letter before them at that time. I will not trespass further on your valuable space this week, but will supply you a little more shortly. EDWARD ALLEN.

MARRYING CHINAMEN.

Some years ago two foolish girls, sisters, filled with the spirit of missions or romance, married two Chinamen in Columbus, Ohio. Both the men were very shrewd in business and had accumulated quite an amount of property. The wives of both of them are now plaintiffs in divorce suits, in which they charge their husbands with infidelity and extreme cruelty. They also allege that their husbands prefer to live in apartments so unhealthful and unsuited to them that their health is impaired in consequence. This is not the first time this experiment has been tried and always, we believe, with the same result. The frugal, patient, quick witted, almond eyed Celestial is all very well in the abstract, but the concrete Chinaman is a very different creature. He is treacherous, brutal, devoid of honor or shame, disgusting and revolting in his personal habits, unfit for companionship with civilized beings, and no amount of sentimental nonsense can make marriage between this race and our own aught but a mistake and a misfortune, conceived in foolishness and ending in misery. Let other foolish girls who have romantic ideas concerning the soft-eyed Celestials remember the experience of those who have tried it, and be warned thereby.

FLEEING FOR REFUGE.

Thirty Thousand People Leave Madrid—One Hundred and Fourteen Cases and Fifty-five Deaths in Twenty-four Hours.

Special to THE TIMES.

MADRID, June 16.—In the province of Castilon de Laplana yesterday there were 80 cases of cholera and 60 deaths. Thirty thousand people have left Madrid, owing to dread of the terrible disease which has taken possession of the people. In the city of Murcia alone yesterday there were, according to the latest reports, 64 new cases of cholera and 39 deaths. In the province of Murcia, outside the city, there were 50 cases of cholera and 16 deaths within the same period.

The Official Gazette confirms the statement that cholera is raging in the provinces of Valencia, Castilon de Laplana and Murcia, and in the city of Madrid. The opposition newspapers, on the contrary, deny that cholera exists in Madrid, and say that all testimony regarding suspicious cases is insufficient to give warrant for the assertion that there are cases of cholera existing.

Fearful Ravages by Cholera.

Special to THE TIMES.

MADRID, 2:30 p. m., June 17.—Yesterday in Castellon de la Plana there were fifty-eight new cases of cholera and 28 deaths. In the city of Valencia 15 new cases and 7 deaths were reported to-day, while the province of Valencia had a total of 146 new cases and 69 deaths. In the city of Murcia there were 98 new cases and 4 deaths. In the Province of Murcia the new cases aggregated 171 and the deaths 74. In Arajnes, a town of New Castles, 17 miles southwest from Madrid there was one case of cholera to-day.

Cholera of the Asiatic Type.

Special to THE TIMES.

MADRID, June 17.—There were four fresh cases of cholera here yesterday afternoon; there were also two deaths. Between the 20th of May and 15th of June there were seventy-five cases of cholera here. During the same period there were 45 deaths. In the city of Valencia during the past 12 hours there were four new cases of cholera and three deaths. Senor Romero Robeldo, Minister of the Interior, declared in Carlos last evening that the suspicious cases in Madrid were, beyond doubt, cholera, and of the Asiatic type.

Labor Riots in Austria.

Special to THE TIMES.

BRUNN, June 17.—A labor riot of grave proportions took place in this city last night. Trouble has been brewing for some time and grew out of a difference between the men and the factory owners about the hours of labor. As a settlement of the difference could not be amicaly arranged, the men struck, and last evening at 6 o'clock great crowds of people gathered about several factories and violently assaulted them with stones and other missiles. The windows were demolished, the gates forced open and the excited people rushed in upon the factory grounds. The military were called out and succeeded by midnight in dispersing the crowds and restoring order. In the conflicts between the soldiers and the rioters two officers and six privates and many rioters were wounded. A renewal of the disturbances is feared.

ARRIVED AT LAST.

Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World in New York.

Special to THE TIMES.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., June 17.—At daybreak the lookout sighted a strange steamer anchored off the bar. It was raining and foggy at the time and he was unable to make her out. She got under weigh and at 5 a. m., when off the Hook, she displayed her signal letters. All doubts about her were dispelled, and the long looked for Isere was reported. The stars and stripes were at her masthead and the vessel was duly saluted from the lookout tower. She passed and going into Horse Shoe Bend, of the lower bay, dropped her anchor abreast of the steam yacht Radha, which was anchored there at the time. The Isere is a bark-rigged vessel. Her long funnel stands midway between her main and mizzen masts. Her hull is painted white. The crew are cleaning the ship now; no communication has yet been had with the shore.

Iowa Visited Yesterday—Two Deaths Already Reported.

Special to THE TIMES.

LEMAR, Iowa, June 17.—As reports from outlying districts come in it becomes evident that the tornado which swept over Plymouth and Cherokee counties was attended with great loss of life. Twenty deaths already have been reported and a large number of others are seriously injured.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The President made the following appointments to-day: John B. Stallo, of Ohio, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States to Italy; Baylis W. Hanna, of Indiana, to be Minister Resident and Consul-General to the Argentine Republic; Charles A. Dougherty, of Pennsylvania, to be Secretary of the Legation at Rome. To be Consuls-General of the United States: Wm. L. Alden, of New York, at Rome; Pierce M. B. Young, of Georgia, at St. Petersburg; M. J. Newmark, of California, at Lyons.

The President of Cornell.

Special to THE TIMES.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 17.—It is rumored that President White will to-day, the 20th anniversary of his presidency of Cornell University, tender his peremptory resignation. He proposes to go to Europe and to write a work on history and social science. Dr. C. K. Adams, of Michigan, is among those mentioned as his successor.

A Relief Committee Needs More Money.

Special to THE TIMES.

WILKESBARRE, (Pa.), June 17.—Affairs at Plymouth are slowly improving. The relief committee's report for the past week places the total number seriously sick at 306; destitute families 220; deaths one; recovered 111. This is decidedly a better showing than made for the week previous. The committee states that they are in need of more money.

POLITICAL CHIT-CHAT.

The Queen's Arrival—Another Conservative Conference—Destructive Fire.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—The Queen arrived this morning at Windsor from Balmoral.

Another conference of the Conservatives was held at noon to-day at the residence of the Marquis of Salisbury. The purpose of this conference was to endeavor to settle upon persons to fill the several offices, so that a complete cabinet may be presented to parliament on Friday. Lord Randolph Churchill attended the conference.

The great establishment devoted to various kinds of business of William Whitley of Westbourne Grove, Queen's Road, and Kensington Garden Square took fire this this morning. All the engines of the entire fire brigade were pouring streams upon the burning mass. The loss is placed at £100,000.

The Conservative Conference.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—At the conference of the Conservatives yesterday it is said that Lord Randolph Churchill made it a condition of his acceptance of office that Sir Stafford Northcote should not be made leader of the Conservatives in the Commons.

Sir Henry Drummond Wolf will have a position in the cabinet.

The conference of the Conservative leaders to-day lasted one hour. It is said all obstacles to forming a cabinet have been surmounted. At the conclusion of the conference Lord Randolph Churchill remained in private conference with the Marquis of Salisbury.

The Cabinet Formed.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, 4:30 p. m. June 17.—The Marquis of Salisbury at 3 o'clock this afternoon departed for Windsor Castle to present the Queen a list of the ministers he has chosen for the new cabinet.

Russia Already Suspicious.

Special to the TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—The Pall Mall Gazette has an editorial, believed to be inspired by M. Lessar, the Russian boundary commissioner. It says that unless Salisbury wishes to deepen the conviction of Russia that his ministry is a menace of war, he will cancel the appointment of Churchill as Secretary of State for India. Russia, continues the article, already regards the Salisbury cabinet with such suspicion that any sudden hitch may cause a serious ruption of the negotiations now in progress as may result in war.

The Emperor Prostrated.

Special to THE TIMES.

BERLIN, June 17.—Emperor William was completely prostrated when he heard of the death of Baron Monteuffel, and said in a mournful way, "all my friends are dying."

The French Minister.

Special to THE TIMES.

PARIS, June 17.—M. Bourree is about to start for Washington to replace M. Roustan as French Minister.

Russian Decree for More Regiments.

Special to THE TIMES.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 17.—An Imperial decree has just been issued ordering that in the event of war regiments shall be formed from the reserve battalions now attached to garrisons.

Death of Baron Von Monteuffel.

Special to THE TIMES.

CARLSBAD, June 17. Field Marshal Baron Von Monteuffel, the distinguished German Commander, and Governor of Alsace and Lorraine, died suddenly here this morning of pulmonary congestion. Baron Von Monteuffel was born in 1807.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

Milk Stands Exposed to Infection at Every Stage Till Consumed.

The rapid approach of cholera from the east westward throughout Europe is causing great alarm. In Madrid a panic now prevails, and thousands are fleeing that plague-stricken place for other cities of refuge. Sanitary measures are being enforced in the large British and continental cities against the fell disease obtaining a foot hold. The authorities are taking every precaution in the public interest by having articles of food examined, and the milk supplied tested. It may not be generally known that in addition to the diseases recognized as bovine diseases, milk may also become a vehicle for the transmission of other affections, especially human. Besides being the recipient and mechanical bearer of the GERMS OF THESE CONTAGIOUS DISORDERS, it is likewise suggested that under favorable conditions of temperature milk would also serve as a midus or bed in which the infecting organisms may germinate. Now it is well known that the operation of cooling, now so largely and wisely practiced, has the effect of holding in check the reproductive activity of the organisms of putrefaction, and it may fairly be expected that the same influence will also tend to restrict or even suspend the development and multiplication of disease germs in milk. This, then, is another reason for the more general employment of the

REFRIGERATOR IN OUR DAIRY SYSTEM.

It cannot be overlooked that milk also stands exposed to infection at every stage of its course from the producer to the consumer; especially is this the case in regard to that portion brought from the country to this city. In the consideration of milk in relation of public health, our cowsheds and the general management of our dairy herds deserve a passing notice. It is very obvious to those who have taken an interest in dairy farming that the dwellings of our milch cows have undergone a vast improvement in recent years, but very many of our rural and urban cowsheds are sadly defective in sanitary organization, and it is to be feared that so long as owners of stock continue in ignorance of common physiological truths and the fundamental laws of animal life, but little hope can be entertained of efficiently protecting public health and fully developing the resources of our dairy cattle.

The Fisheries and Reciprocity.

In the House of Commons last night Sir John Macdonald said that the tendency of correspondence with the United States was such as to create strong hopes that negotiations would take place with regard to the fisheries, and for the adoption of a reciprocity treaty.

THE POLITICAL LEADERS.

The Queen has offered Mr. Gladstone an earldom in recognition of his services to the Queen and country. Gladstone asked that he might be allowed to forego the honor. The News in an editorial on this subject rejoices at Mr. Gladstone's decision and says, that no title could add to his fame or enhance the enthusiastic devotion of countless admirers. Besides, his leadership is required in the coming struggle to secure unity in the present one.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, home secretary in Mr. Gladstone's cabinet, in addressing a meeting of Liberals last night in St. James' hall, denied that the Liberal government had courted defeat The Tories had at last overthrown the government by an alliance with the Parnellites, with whom they had nothing in common and withal were now in an embarrassed position. He hoped the tories would not treat with Russia in the spirit of late speeches of Lord Randolph Churchill and the Marquis of Salisbury. Sir William gave assurances, however, that the tories should have fair play, and if they labored for peace should have the support of the liberal party also. Tories, he said, might squabble about their leaders, but liberals would have no dissensions about theirs. Liberals were organizing their forces for the great campaign They could fight for the old cause and with the old leader on whose honored head would be placed the crown of final victory. The meeting was crowded to excess and the greatest enthusiasm was displayed.

DEFINITELY ACCEPTS.

Lord Salisbury has definitely accepted the premiership, and it is stated Sir Stafford Northcote accepted a peerage, leaving Sir Michael Hicks Beach to lead the conservatives in the house of commons. Lord Randolph Churchill will have an important question in the new cabinet, but the distribution of portfolios will not be decided until the arrival of the Queen, who is traveling with the utmost speed. Lord Randolph Churchill agreed to the coercion act on condition that it only be forced if found imperative. Churchill's action is generally attributed to fear that Lord Salisbury and other leaders would ignore his claim to office, and desire to retard the progress of the seats bill in order to give a chance, if possible, to appeal to old constituencies, which are likely to support conservatives.

CHURCHILL, SECRETARY FOR INDIA.

The Standard announces that the Marquis of Salisbury in addition to the premiership will assume the duties of foreign secretary; that Sir Stafford Northcote will be elevated to the peerage; that Lord Randolph Churchill will be secretary of state for India, and that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach will be Conservative leader in the House of Commons, and probably Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The Ulster Conservatives will wait on the Marquis of Salisbury to-day to urge a renewal of the Coercion bill.

Miss Emma Nevada, the American prima donna, was the guest last evening of the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough house. Miss Nevada delighted the brilliant company with her beautiful singing and charming manners.

Election of Officers.

PORTLAND, Or., June 16.—This afternoon all the old officers of the O. R. & N. Co., were re-elected, excepting Vice-President Mansfield, of Boston, his place being filled by W. S. Ladd, of Portland.

Fifty Thousand Dollar Libel Suit.

The San Francisco Bridge company, a corporation engaged in contracting to constructing bridges, improving streets, building wharves, etc., has commenced a suit in the Superior Court against Michael H. de Young, proprietor of the Chronicle, for libel, claiming $50,000 damages. The alleged libel consisted of a statement made concerning the plaintiff's connection with the seawall contracts of the Board of State Harbor Commissioners. The Commissioners advertised for proposals to remove the piles of the Broadway and Davis street wharves preparatory to constructing another section of the sea wall, but rejected all the proposals to do the work. The bridge company then agreed to do the work for the old material having previously bid to do it for $2,987. The Chronicle publishes this fact under the head of "Bogus Bids," and charged that the contractors who bid to do the work for $3,000, and then offered to do it for nothing, proposed to "loot" the State.—San Francisco Weekly Bulletin, June 10th.

The company named, we are informed, is the one to whom the contract for the construction of the Point Ellice bridge was awarded by the provincial government. The Colonist would have the public believe that the gentleman who was the successful tenderer is a resident of Kamloops, when in reality he is reported to be a member of the San Francisco bridge company, and his residence in this province only of a transitory nature.

The British troops will leave Assouan in the middle of June for Cairo at the rate of 1000 a week. The rebels have occupied Korti and it is expected they will advance upon Dongola when the British have gone.

THE growth of some of the Southern States is illustrated by the statement concerning the town of Chattanooga that it has increased since the war "from a clump of white-washed warehouses and shanties to a city of 25,000 inhabitants; from a tax roll of $1,300,000 to one of $7,000,000, and has increased its business capital from $200,000 to $5,000,000."

THE Toronto Mail publishes a letter from its Northwest correspondent with GEN. MIDDLETON, in which the charge is made that the white settlers around Prince Albert incited the half-breeds to join in the rebellion. The Mail editorially calls upon the government to make a thorough investigation, and deal out justice equitably to the white and half-breed rebels, as, if the former induced the latter to go to extremes, they should be severely punished.

HAMILTON, Ont., Spectator (Conservative): "RIEL and the half-breeds put themselves at Batouche outside the pale by threatening to murder their captives unless the troops retreated; but it is a question whether frank redress of grievances should not be offered to the Indians. It seems clear they would accept allowances, if honestly paid, in lieu of their right to solitude, the invasion of which is their ultimate grievance, and they have a moral claim to compensation. We cannot stop the plough to save the buffalo, or acknowledge the right of savages to forty square miles apiece; but still they owned the continent, and destiny has been rough on them."

THE TIMES' despatches from the Northwest indicate that a secret organization is being formed among the soldiers in the Northwest, the object of which is to compass the death of the arch-rebel and such of his followers as are known to have been implicated in the murderous butcheries in the Northwest should they escape punishment at the hands of the authorities. If there is anything in this it is probably the work of some hot heads who do not calculate the effect of their actions. These prisoners were taken by the soldiers to the commanding officer, and by him handed over to the civil authorities, and there the duty of the soldiers, so far as they are at present concerned, ends. Canada cannot afford to encourage assassination societies, no matter who may be the object of the vengeance.

IT seems strange, says the Fort Macleod Gazette, that MR. DEWDNEY'S universal unpopularity in the Northwest both with whites and Indians; notwithstanding his mismanagement of the affairs of the country; notwithstanding his almost utter neglect of every portion of the Northwest except the district he is particularly interested in; notwithstanding the fact that ample warning has been given of the consequences of keeping him in his present position, the government should still persist in their determination to keep this man in power. His usefulness, both as Indian Commissioner and Lieutenant-Governor is gone, if ever he was in possession of that quality, and by still forcing him on the country, the government are heaping fresh insults upon a people who have already borne almost as much as it is possible for human nature to bear.

ON May 25th the London Times, misled by its Philadelphia correspondent, announced that the Canadian Pacific railroad was complete, and that troops and munitions could be transported from Halifax to Port Moody. The Times has not often committed so great a blunder. Of course it was suspected that some persons interested in booming stocks had contrived in some way to get the statement published. It is said that it had some effect on the stock market for a short time. There are in London, however, several persons who know that the C. P. R. is not yet complete, and that it cannot be ready to carry passengers or freight from ocean to ocean for some time, and the misstatement in the Times was quickly corrected. The other London papers indulged in sneers, more or less covert, at the Times, and it will probably be some time before the old Thunderer quite recovers from the effect of this egregious blunder.

FORMATION AND DISSOLUTION OF CABINETS.

When ministers are about to resign, their intention to do so is made known to the sovereign by the Premier, but they continue to hold office and transact the usual routine business of their departments until their successors are appointed. As soon as the composition of the new cabinet is completed the sovereign fixes a day on which she will give audience to the members of the outgoing Ministry, to receive from them their insignia of office. On the same day, almost immediately after they have left the royal presence the new Premier and chosen colleagues are introduced and have handed to them the seals and symbols just left by their predecessors. This is the only occasion during their term of office on which they appear as a body in the presence of the sovereign. In this way the government is carried on in almost unbroken continuity. Only one other form has to be gone through and the change of Ministry is finally effected. It is a customary courtesy for outgoing Ministers to have personal interviews with their successors at their respective offices for the purpose of explaining the state of public business, and for handing over all public documents which have come into their possession during their term of office. They are not, however, required to leave behind them any private letters which they may have received, even though these private letters relate exclusively to public affairs.

Prior to the year 1867 the resignation of a Ministry was brought about by one of two causes—either the forfeiture of the confidence of the sovereign or the forfeiture of the confidence of Parliament. In that year, however, and again in 1874, the Ministry of the day resigned their appointments as soon as the result of the general election became known. The precedent thus established was afterwards followed by LORD BEACONSFIELD'S Ministry.

The dual responsibility of Ministers their responsibility to both Crown and Parliament—requires that they should have seats in the legislature. Those members of the government who are peers occupy the front bench on the right of the woolsack in the House of Lords. The LORD CHANCELLOR is ex-officio speaker or president of the House of Lords, but though his high functionary is usually a peer it is not legally or constitutionally necessary that he should be a peer before he enters upon the duties of his office. It is only since 1603 that a peerage has been conferred upon the LORD CHANCELLOR, and in 1830 the woolsack was, for at least one day, actually occupied by HENRY BROUGHAM while still a commoner. In the House of Commons the cabinet ministers are, by courtesy and long usage, allowed undisputed possession of the front seat at the right of the speaker. This seat is commonly spoken of as the treasury bench. The only occasion on which any other members of the House claim to sit on that bench is at the opening of a new parliament, when the four members for the city of London assert and generally exercise their ancient rights to take precedence of even the ministers of the Crown.

MONEY AND SUGAR-CANDY.

According to the New York Sun it is a great pity that money has not, like sugar candy, the property of surfeiting all who handle it. This commodity is one, however, that never seems to glut the appetite. Those who have little, as well as those who have much are alike greedy for more. "Get it honestly if you can, but get it anyway," appears to be the admonition given to many a young beginner in life by older heads than himself. Following out the principle of "getting," banks and similar institutions suffer severely in consequences. The Sun observes that recent bank defalcations have brought forcibly to public attention the perils which surround the banking business. The capital of a bank has to be guarded, not only against burglars, counterfeiters, highway robbers, and failing debtors, but also against dishonest tellers, cashiers, and presidents. In addition there is a drying up of income, caused by the stagnation of business, and the consequent low rates of interest so that, take it all in all, the lot of the owner of bank stocks is not a happy one. The comment usually made when a disaster happens to a bank from peculation and fraud, is that its officers are to blame; but remarks our contemporary, "a very moderate acquaintance with the details of the banking business would dispel this illusion. The assets of a bank consist of green-backs, bills of other banks, gold and silver coin, checks, drafts, notes, bonds, warehouse receipts, stocks, and all sorts of property that is susceptible of easy negotiability. A large bank receives in a single day millions of dollars in deposits, and its payments are correspondingly great. The abstraction of a few thousands or even hundreds of thousands of dollars out of the mass is very easy, and its detection is difficult. The only absolutely certain method of finding out that it has occurred is to call in all the dealers' books, compare them with the bank's books, and then count up all the bank's cash and other assets. This is an enormously laborious and fatiguing task, besides stopping all new transactions until it is completed, so that it is only resorted to when suspicion is excited by the results of a fraud actually committed and past prevention."

REFERRING to the custom of cremation the Liverpool Mercury says that it will not be possible much longer to defer a national decision on the subject. The evils of our burial system are constantly occupying the attention of hygienists, and they will have to be seriously considered by parliament and the public.

A POLITICAL STREET ARAB.

The despatches received from London by THE TIMES during the past few days indicate that although his party leaders regard him with a disdain bordering on a dread, LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL'S presence in the coming Conservative cabinet cannot at present be dispensed with. His name has already been mentioned in connection with the Secretaryship of the colonies and India. If he will pursue the same line of policy which he wished the GLADSTONE government to adopt while the noble Lord was in the cold shades of opposition, and occupying an irresponsible position, the foreign policy of Britain will be such an one as will find her in continual hot water. However, there is not much danger for this, for it will be found that LORD CHURCHILL in office and the same individual out of office are entirely different personages. At the present juncture the following pen sketch of LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL by the Pall Mall Gazette will be read with interest:

Our Master Malapert's imitation of the style of the immature DISRAELI is amusing enough and characteristic withal. But it is one of those outbreaks which lend men on both sides of the House to regard LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL with despair, not unmingled with dread. How can you treat seriously a politican who one day poses as a statesman and the next turns somersaults in the gutter? More than most of our contemporaries, we have endeavored to regard the member for Woodstock as a statesman and a possible leader of a great party. But every now and then some outburst of gaminerie compels us to admit that the heir-presumptive to the Conservative leadership is but a political street Arab after all. No doubt LORD RANDOLPH will console himself by reflecting that similar things were said of DISRAELI and he lived through them all to emerge as Prime Minister. But he did not emerge to Prime Minister until the people had forgotten that he ever wrote the letters of Runnymede, whereas our Pinchbeck Dizzy hopes to succeed to office before Christmas. He may reply that things have changed since those days, that the new constituencies like to see statesmen changed, and that we are in for an era of bargee politics. If so, of course our Prince Flibberty-Gibberty will stand to win. But he misconceives the sober, serious character of the people whom he aspires to rule. They are diverted by his antics. He enlivens the dulness of the political arena. But to entrust him with power—that is altogether another matter. Of this we had a significant illustration last Christmas, when 1,450 persons sent in voting papers indicating who in their opinion were the greatest statesmen and the greatest humbugs of the day. For every vote given to LORD RANDOLPH as a statesman, he had three as a humbug.

THE revision of the Old Testament is a literary success, but it has no pretentions to scholarly completeness. There have been practically no alterations in the text, the variants of the Septuagint, even when undoubtedly superior, being relegated to the margin. The literary merits of the Authorized Version have been retained and on the whole enhanced, and its majestic rhythm has not been disturbed, and has even been allowed fuller play by the arrangement of the prose books in paragraphs, and of the poetical books in separate lines. The revisors are to be congratulated on the satisfactory result of their fifteen years' labor.

As has been published in the telegraphic dispatches the special medical commission appointed by the Spanish government to investigate the epidemic prevailing in the province of Valencia has decided that it is the real Asiatic cholera. This ought to be sufficient to induce our sanitary authorities to see to it that we are ready, should by any chance the visitor make its appearance. The chief carriers of the disease are certain kinds of merchandise, especially rags and clothing; but a thorough system of quarantine and disinfection should be sufficient to prevent danger from these sources. The utmost vigilance is necessary, and no efforts should be spared on the part of the Board of Health.

SUPERSTITIONS

OF THE MEN WHO BATTLE WITH "THE TIGER."

Luck May Lie in a Black Kitten—The Fortune That Waits on a "Coon's" Dream—A Crooked Pin—Lost.

[Chicago Herald Interview.]

"You may believe in luck or you may not believe in it," said a well-known sporting man. "You may not think there is anything in superstition, or you may, but I tell you there's a heap in it, and there is not a gambler in this town who has not his pet superstition, and governs himself accordingly. Why, look here; the other day I found a black kitten on the sidewalk near my house. It wanted to be familiar with me, and I picked it up, carried it into the house and gave it a feed. That day I came down town and made a big win against the bank, and I have been winning ever since.

"You ask any of these fellows if they believe in such things and they'll tell you there is nothing in it, but they all have their signs and their lucky numbers, and their lucky clothes, and a hundred things I can't repeat, for all that. There's Pat Sheedy. Wasn't he sitting in bad luck one night and losing every bet he put down, when he got up, went home, changed every rag of clothes he had on his back, then turned and made the biggest win he ever made in his life? No; I guess there's nothing in it, but they all play it as if there was, just the same. They are always on the lookout for something. You know the 'coons' are great for 'policy,' and they are always dreaming numbers. Now, if a gambler can only get onto a 'coon's' dream he's fixed. Tom Wallis was walking down State street one day and he passed two 'coons' very busy talking. As he passed he heard one say: 'I tell you, honey, I dream 6, 7, 8 twice; you go buy two pigs and a saddle.' Now, Tom is a 'high-roller,' and plays bank for all there is in it. He turned round when he heard those numbers, went up to '68,' and played the 'pot,' which I s'pose you know is the 6, 7 and 8, for all he could get in it. It won for him, one deal eleven times in succession, and he played the limit. And he played it all day and nothing else, and he won a big pile, I tell you. No, there's nothing in it, but they all do it.

"I know gamblers," he continued, "who will never play against certain dealers, nor if certain persons are in the room. They think they 'hoodoo' them, that they gave them bad luck by looking at them. They will curse some fellow for a 'hoodoo' up hill and down dale. Then there are players who, if you touch one of their chips, or put one of yours on top of theirs think you give them back luck and that they will lose, certain. Poker players all believe in lucky seats, and in the run of the cards, and in lucky decks of cards, and so do the most of back players. They'll walk round their chair three times in order to change their luck. Some men won't lend money to their most intimate friend while they are playing, because it gives their luck away. Others believe in lucky pieces of money, old coins with a certain date on them or some mark or other.

"I knew an old player who had a lucky sixpence. He did seem to be mighty lucky for a long time. But one time he got broke down to his sixpence. He laid that down on a card and told the dealer he would make it good for a quarter. The dealer knew him and knew about his sixpence. He turned and the sixpence was swept into the till. 'You see, Joe,' said the dealer, 'there's nothing in it.' You know if it had been such a lucky piece for Joe he ought not to have lost it. So it must have been something else that gave Joe his run of luck.

"No gambler in his senses will ever pick up a crooked pin on the street or one lying crosswise with the way he is walking. The way to pick up a pin is to have the head turned toward you. I know some say that the point should be towards you, and I have heard that old Thad Stevens, who was a great gambler, would only pick it up with the point toward him. I've tried all ways, but pins don't seem to affect my luck one way or the other. A four-leaf clover is a great thing to find to bring a fellow good luck, but they are about as scarce as good luck is generally.

"Most gamblers wear a watch charm or a finger ring that they build a heap on. Cy Jaynes has a finger ring that money couldn't buy, and he don't believe in it either, if you ask him. Still he likes to have the ring on when he is dealing. Another thing, a man will have lucky and unlucky days. I tell you, you can lecture all day and preach all night, but luck is luck, and I know it. I dreamed one night that the jack won four times in succession. Next day I went to the bank. I was broke and couldn't play, but I'll be blamed if the very first deal I looked at if the jack didn't win four times straight."

"There must be a good many ups and downs at the game?" suggested the scribe.

"Ups and downs? I believe you," said the sport. "I went down town one day with 10 cents, and that night carried home $300. I went down the next day with the $300, and had to borrow car fare to get home. Don't you touch it, young man, if you do you'll never regret it but once; that'll be all your life. As for me, I've got my cat now, and I shall try and get out."

A day or two afterward the scribe met his sporting friend again. "Say! I lost my cat day before yesterday, and last night I went broke. I am on the hunt now for a black cat."

Overshadowing the Stewart Mansion.

[New York Correspondence.]

The famous Stewart mansion is going to be ruined, so far as appearances go, by the erection of a monstrous apartment house covering the rest of the block on which the beautiful marble structure stands, and rising to more than twice its height. Excavation for the foundations is now in progress. The widow Stewart lives alone in her house, except for a force of servants, and there are seldom any exterior signs of life within, but the old lady is, nevertheless, sensitive to outward show, and it is said that she will abandon the place as soon as the overshadowing house is done.

A Bit of Superstition.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

A lady tells of a curious little bit of superstition in a colored servant she employs. She saw a magnet sticking out of his pocket.

"What do you want with that magnet?"

"What fo' that magnet, Miss? I don't dare to go fo' to clean dem windows, Miss, widout dat magnet. I fall over. Dat magnet, Miss, draws me back again."

The "Age of Horn."

[Scientific Journal.]

A variety of prehistoric objects in horn, such as amulets, cups, knives, daggers, rings, buttons, bracelets, etc., have been found in a stratum, existing at a depth of about five feet in the mud of Lake Neuenburg, Switzerland. The finder, Herr G. Kaisor, believes them to be older than the stone and bronze implements of the same locality, and he proposes to call the period to which they belong "the age of horn."

THE PERFUMER'S ART.

A "Gamut" of Odors, Ranging from Civet to Patchouly—Temperament.

["C." in Brooklyn Eagle.]

The art of the perfumer is shown in delicately combining different scents. When we walk in a garden the delicious odors that greet us are by no means the emanation of one flower. All the blooms of the garden more or less, add to the general harmony that strikes so gratefully upon the olfactory nerves, they reach us in such infinitely small particles that no one scent overpowers the other. When art attempts to imitate the diluting effect of the breeze she has to be more circumspect. Only odors of a similar octave, as a recent writer has pointed out, will agree with each other. Another authority, indeed, has elaborated the idea and has compounded a perfect gamut of odors, beginning with civet, verbena and citronella in the treble clef, and ending with wallflower, vanilla and patchouly in the bass clef.

The ingenious originator of this idea well remarks, "The odors have to be remembered, and it is noteworthy to remark that odors do fix themselves upon the memory; and were it not for this remembrance of an odor, the merchants in the trades indicated would soon be at fault." These dealers, on the strength of their olfactory nerves, often make purchases amounting to thousands. The tea merchant, the tobacco dealer, or the hop merchant takes one sniff at the commodity in which he deals, and makes his purchase without fault.

The writer quoted goes on to say, "An experienced perfumer will have 200 odors in his laboratory and can distinguish every one by name. Could a musician, with an instrument of 200 notes, distinguish and name every note struck without seeing the instrument?" Every person, from his own experience, can testify to another quality which scent in common with sound possesses. I allude to the power it has of recalling to the mind's eye the scenes of long past years. The mere breath of a perfume will often call up a picture of an event, with all its minutiæ, which had long lain dormant in our memory.

The composition of bouquets may, indeed, be considered a fine art, viewed by the light in which we regard it; but the scent is an individual thing. The perfume that scents the blonde by no means agrees with a brunette. There are differences of temperament, again, which require differences of perfume.

It would be noticed that in music we select those airs which are consonant with our own temperament. Why should we not employ our own instincts in selecting perfumes? As it is, we are the mere slaves of fashion, because a certain actress uses a certain bouquet, every store girl that can afford it does the same—or rather she gets some sham article, which is palmed off upon her for the real thing.

Perfection of Human Philosophy.

[Chronicle "Undertones."]

I once knew a man who had reached as close to the perfection of human philosophy as possible. One half of the discomfort and a large proportion of the misery of the world come from our inability to gratify tastes that are acquired—that are not by any means necessary to existence. This fellow held a theory that there is not in any part of the world absolute necessity for starvation. That everywhere nature has provided something that will sustain life. He argued that men very often suffered from the absence of what they had been accustomed to eat, and they did not stop to think that it was possible to survive even on water for a period of time.

He had traveled, and he made one rule in all his travels, to eat whatever any other form of human life could eat, and failing human life, whatever any other form of animal life could subsist upon. He could with equanimity, if there was nothing else for it, live like a Digger Indian. His relish for a good dinner was as great as anybody's, but he never feared to get away into a desert, or a strange land, or an uninhabited island, because he felt implicit confidence that he could always find something to eat, even if he had to suffer a certain amount of unpleasantness in doing it.

Carolina's Brick-Dust Soil.

[J. H. Beadle in Rockville Tribune.]

From Spartanburg I took the Sunday train to Cowpens, and that afternoon walked the ten or twelve miles to the old battle-ground, which is about four miles from the border of North Carolina and is a region where the earth looks like a bank of granulated sugar, with streaks of chocolate and brick-dust. "Brick-dust" is a weak comparison, however; for the clay belts are much redder than new bricks—the reddest I ever saw. After a light rain Sunday afternoon the road looked exactly as if it had been drenched with arterial blood. Without fertilizers the average yield is eight bushels of wheat or fifteen of corn per acre. Guano, phosphate or bone dust double the yield. The people are healthy, poor, pious and contented.

Russian Conscription.

[Foreign Letter.]

A Russian decree was put forth in 1882 placing more rigorous conditions upon admissions into the army ranks, the restrictions relating to the men's thorax. Under this order a large number of men were sent home on account of chest complaints. Thirty-two per cent. of the conscripts enrolled in the Russian army during the past six years were married, showing that a large proportion of Russian marriages are early ones. The husbands are compelled to spend five years in the army, during which time their wives and children not infrequently become burdens upon the state.

Dublin's Sea Bathers.

[London Journal.]

There are plenty of dirty faces to be seen in the streets of Dublin, and yet Lady Morgan was right in saying that the Dublin folks are the "most sea-bathingest as well as car-drivingest people in the world. In the summer bathing is the order of the day. The Irish girls are far more courageous swimmers than their English sisters; they take to the water like ducks, and dive, float, and swim as to the manner born. It is a positive reproach not to swim. Crowds flock to the water, and lines of bathing places stretch along the coast as far as Bray.

Transportation on the Credit System.

[N.Y. Inter Ocean.]

The railroads in Guatemala are run on the credit system. Freight charges are seldom paid upon the delivery of the goods, but merchants and others expect three or four months and sometimes more time. If a package arrives with your address upon it the railroad company is expected to deliver it at your residence, unless it happens to be very bulky, and a few weeks after a collector comes around for the freight money.

Chinese Prescription.

Chinese doctors induce faith in their prescriptions by making them of gigantic size. A writer in The Fortschritt describes one of them two feet long and calling for twenty different ingredients.

France's Egg Production.

France is the greatest egg producing country in the world, supplying not only her own people, but selling also to England, Germany and other countries.

Japanese Oranges.

The Japanese have very small oranges without seeds that come out of the skin almost like a pea out of a pod.

THE COLONIST'S BRAYING.

The Colonist this morning, in an article on "Politics and Schools," took THE TIMES for a looking glass in which it saw its image according to its own verbiage, that of "an ass." THE TIMES is now convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that truthfulness and fair play is as foreign to the principles of that sheet as Christianity is to a Chinaman. If the Colonist directs its remarks against THE TIMES when it states "The fact of the matter is the opposition press and party trained all their batteries on MR. HIGGINS. They chose to regard him as the proposed embodiment of the government on the school board. They resorted to every despicable device to destroy his chances of election. No yarn was too monstrous, no lie too mean for their purpose," that journal is guilty of a barefaced falsehood. THE TIMES challenges the Colonist to point out any one instance where this journal has even mentioned MR. HIGGINS' name in connection with the school trustee candidature, and that of politics up to the time of the closing of the polls last night; anything then bearing on that subject was brought out by its own uncalled for remarks and could not have had any influence for or against the election, as the die was cast. THE TIMES studiously refrained from opposing any school trustee candidate on political or any other grounds, as we adhered to our opinions expressed before the election, viz.: that religion and politics ought not to be the standard of fitness for the position. The gentlemen who were before the electors as candidates were known personally to almost all, and it was for them to say whom they preferred. They have done so and we do not mean to find fault with their choice, at the same time it is a fact that the best men for that, or any other position, do not always get elected; for oft times influences are brought to bear in favor of successful candidates who, if left entirely to their own merits, would have been elected to stay at home. In conclusion the record of the Colonist, on the future pages of history, will not be such as is written of Abraham Lincoln. It is said that when that gentleman, as a lawyer, stated a case that his opponent's side of the subject was more than half argued, for the reason that he put forward nothing but facts and dealt with them as such.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—City Council meets tonight.

—The vote for Mr. Higgins yesterday was 167 instead of 172, as published by us.

—The Y. M. C. A. concert to-night at the First Presbyterian school-room.

—An elegant dining car has been placed on the Northern Pacific trains between Tacoma and Portland.

—Chinese flags were flying yesterday in honor of the anniversary of some celebrated heathen.

—The high school picnic takes place on Friday next at Cedar Hill. The bus leaves the school at 8 a. m.

—Councillor Ward will introduce a by-law at to-night's meeting of the Council to arrange for an overdraft of $35,000 on the Bank of British North America.

—John H. Carney, formerly agent at the City dock, Seattle, has been appointed assistant general baggage agent of the Northern Pacific at Portland.

—There was no Canadian, Eastern American, or Portland mail to-day. Only a few letters and several papers arrived by the Olympian.

—The Hall brothers, printers, having secured control of the plant of the Herald and Call, at Seattle, will issue an evening paper shortly.

—At the City Council to-night, Councillor Earle will move that the street committee be authorized to purchase an additional steam drill, the cost not to exceed $425.

Another accident is reported from the Onderdonk road. James Moore, a brakeman, was killed at Devil's lake, near Hope, on Monday evening. No particulars are given.

—List of letters detained for postage: Mrs L Nixon, Nanaimo; Quong Chong, Seattle; N Dievoich, San Francisco; P Jollibois, Four Mile House; Miss M Cowie, Quadra; W Leslie Jones, Newcastle, N. S. W.

—An exchange says the curfew law is rigidly enforced in Albany, Oregon. Young men under 21 and ladies under 18 must be under cover by 9o'clock at night unless they have legitimate business out. It is a dead certainty that there are no roller rinks in that town.

—Another old land mark is being removed to make room for a large and more modern building. The frame dwelling on the corner of Douglas and Fort streets, a 50-er, has been demolished and a new brick structure will be put up by Allsop & Mason representing the owners.

—A telegram from Yale last evening announces the arrest there yesterday, of Isaac N. Hibbs, the defaulting postmaster from Lewiston, Idaho. The arrest was made at Harrison river, and prisoner was lodged in Yale gaol. There were $10,500 found on his person when searched.

—The splendid prospect for crops is attracting attention throughout the country, and the outlook for immigration to the Northern Pacific country during the coming summer is very flattering. The sales by the land department for the month of May were 10,273 acres in Washington Territory.

—The Olympian brought freight for the following: Rev T Thompson, B M Beecher, W J Sutton, H H Redmond, D W Higgins, W J McDonald, G Marlow, R T Williams, G Morris, King Tye Co, Todd & Son, H G Walker, R Carr, Turner Beeton & Co, Hutcheson Y & Co, J Crossen, J R Moore, M Hammond, J Hutcheson, S Leiser, Welch R & Co, A Bullock, Hastings Saw Mill Co, M R Smith, J Wilson, H Saunders, G Montobio, T Earle, A Otter, W A Allen, S J Pitts, J Williams, Fell & Co, Carne & Munsie.

Laid Away.

The remains of "Gentleman" Brown of Happy Valley, were laid away in a corner of Ross Bay cemetery to-day. Mr. Hayward, undertaker, and one or two others, performed the last sad rights.

A Tough Shooting Yarn Told by a Local Medico.

On Sunday last after lunch, a party of gentlemen in this city, were vieing with each other as to which could tell the most wonderful and at the same time veracious (?) story. Eschewing fishing adventures as being too tame and incapable of elaboration, a disciple of Esculapius, who, in his wanderings in times gone by, had traveled, explored and hunted in that "Terra incognita" known as the Indian territory of the United States, related the following. I was one day riding ahead of my party when I suddenly sighted a splendid antelope. Raising my hand as a sign to my companions not to come up too suddenly, and so spoil my shot, I, without dismounting, took steady aim at my quarry, and was chagrined to find I had missed my game and that the ball from my rifle had ploughed a large hole in a small hill some distance beyond; at the same time the antelope trotted off apparently unconcerned and unhurt over the rising ground and disappeared from view. Riding to the top of the hill, for the purpose of following the tracks, I was surprised to find the game lying dead in the hollow. Dismounting and examining the animal I found that the ball had passed completely through its lungs and penetrated the hill beyond. On the arrival of my companions they declared it was one of the most marvellous shots on record, and hard to beat, as upon measuring the distance from where I fired from my horse to where the antelope stood it was found to be over three hundred yards. Upon the conclusion of this yarn the company unanimously voted the doctor a worthy compeer of Munchausen, this tale even eclipsing an astounding buffalo story related by the medico at dinner the previous evening and causing a famous hunting surveyor, and a knight of the hammer, who had hitherto considered themselves as some on the shoot, hide their diminished heads in shame.

From East to West and Vice Versa.

Mr. E. W. Evans, of Haldimand Co., Ont., who arrived in this city a few days since from the Northwest via the C. P. R., is returning to the east in a few days. Mr. Evans took the train to the end of the track, seven miles west of Beaver Creek in the Selkirks, thence he footed it to the second crossing of the Columbia, now known as Farwell, which he describes as a very primitive and wicked place—the distance being about 70 miles. He was accompanied by a party of prospectors, land hunters and men looking for work. He describes the scenery as magnificent, the timber excellent, and water of the very best quality. So far as he could observe he did not notice any arable land in the mountain country. Along the Thompson river he noticed some fine land and comfortable ranches. It is not Mr. Evans' intention to return to this province. He thinks the climate perfection, but the country is not an agricultural one.

A False Alarm.

Information was brought to Supt. Roycraft this morning that a brutal assault had been committed upon a pedestrian on the Gorge road. The party carrying the news gave the particulars with all the circumstantiality of a close observer of the occurrence. The assault was said to have been made by three men, armed with clubs, and their victim was left half dead in the bushes by the roadside. His groaning had been distinctly heard and the Supt. was advised to make haste in going to his relief. That vigilant official at once dispatched a constable to the scene, and sure enough upon his arrival there, the blood in his veins was congealed by a distinctly audible groan, uttered every few seconds proceeding from the thicket. Here the villians had evidently dragged their victim, and left him to die. The constable carefully searched among the trees and in a few minutes found the object of his search, which proved to be only a billy goat in distress. Possibly one of Peck's Bad Boy's tricks.

Mr. Chambers Resigns.

Mr. Coote M. Chambers, who was yesterday elected to the school board from Johnson street ward, to-day sent in his resignation to Mr. Pope, Superintendent of Education. In the letter announcing his retirement, no reasons are given; but we have been given to understand that they are good and sufficient and fully justify Mr. Chambers in the action he has taken. Nevertheless, we sincerely regret that the efficient and painstaking services of so excellent a trustee should be lost to the city. For a number of years Mr. Chambers has devoted much time and attention to the cause of education, and has done as much during that time as any other man in Victoria to further its interests. His resignation will be a great public loss.

Peck's Bad Boy.

Philharmonic Hall was crowded to suffocation last night by an audience anxious to hear the great moral play of Peck's Bad Boy. The grocery of Schultz was the scene of the bad boy's pranks in the first act, and in the second and third afforded him an endless source of amusement, and the tricks he played convulsed the audience. The "moral" of play, like the moral of the book, is somewhat difficult to find; but the amusement that it afforded was none the less genuine with the large majority of the audience. The several parts were well sustained; even the Royal Butter was "well supported" in the great butting scene. The troupe left for the Sound this morning.

Keeping Abreast with Railway Construction.

A correspondent writing from Farwell in reference to church matters says, that the Canada Presbyterian church is like the Canadian Pacific railway, it seems to keep abreast with the times, as nearly every place of any size along the line is supplied with a church, and I don't know of anything calculated to impress a stranger coming into a strange place more than to find the same psalms and tunes sung that he has been accustomed to. The C. P. church deserve all praise for taking such a hold in the country, and it is to be hoped they will continue to help on these little missions until they are strong enough to be self-sustaining. I shall give other denominations a visit shortly.

Got Bail.

The young men Leclair and Marwick yesterday committed to stand their trial for assaulting two Chinamen on the Craigflower road, gave bail for their appearance at next assizes and were liberated. Bail in each case was fixed at $200 by themselves and two sureties of $200 each.
